Pink Black Polka Dots

Developed by a family who homeschooled nine of their ten children for eighteen years, this tool is both a Daily Log and Lesson Planner in one convenient book. The Log documents your student's learning for 180 days. It records instructional materials and activities for each subject on each day in a simple grid format. It complies with Pennsylvania homeschool law, but should work well in any state or country that requires a record of texts used per subject per day.

[Please see your own state's homeschool law.] The Lesson Planner can also serve as assignment sheets and as additional documentation for your school year. As your children mature, you may wish to have them work from the weekly plan as their assignment sheet. They can check off each subject when completed, and you can initial the second block after approving their assignment. At the end of the year the logs may be moved to the child's portfolio, and the lesson plans can be saved in this convenient bound form. Streamline your planning and record keeping with these two helpful tools.
