An invaluable resource helping teachers at all levels of experience to develop their understanding of English grammar. Grammar for English Language Teachers is designed to help practising and trainee teachers to develop their knowledge of English grammar systems. It encourages teachers to appreciate factors that affect grammatical choices, and evaluates the 'rules of thumb' presented to learners in course materials. Consolidation exercises provide an opportunity for teachers to test these rules against real language use and to evaluate classroom and reference materials.

The study of language in written texts and transcripts of speech is greatly helped by a student's ability to identify and describe those prominent features of the grammar which make one variety of English different from another. A Course Book in English Grammar looks at many of the problems encountered by students and encourages them to find their own answers and to assess hypotheses about grammatical description. There are activities at each step, using authentic written and spoken data. Using 'real' texts avoids the faking of evidence to be found in some traditional grammar books, and interesting problems of analysis that arise in such texts are a source of useful discussion. The book has been thoroughly revised and expanded for this second edition, which contains additional chapters and material. A new opening chapter discusses the concept of 'grammatically correct English' and the differences between descriptive, prescriptive and proscriptive approaches to the writing of grammar books. The book is a systematic description of Standard English, and examples of contemporary spoken dialectal grammar are introduced and analysed to illustrate the differences between standard and nonstandard usage. A Course Book in English Grammar will prove invaluable to all students of English Language. This book aims at helping learners of English (particularly those whose first language is Chinese) to improve their understanding of, and their competence in, English grammar. It directly addresses the needs of Chinese learners and takes full account of their first language in helping them understand how English works by systematically requiring them to think about grammar, and to come up with their own hypotheses about how it works on the basis of the given context. The book is designed for students' learning on their own as well as in a classroom. Each chapter is accompanied by a separate 'students' notes', which the students can consult after working through all the data and exercises in each chapter, to check their own answers and to read further explanations on the grammatical points in question. This are of vital importance. English is taught as a foreign language in some countries of the world and as a second language in the countries like India. People have easily adapted the western style in dress, food habits and some of the cultural attributes of the English people. But with regard to using the language English for communication purposes both in personal and professional life; the Indians feel it very difficult. Many a time the people are able to understand the English spoken by other people, but find it very difficult to respond in English. The reason for this handicap is that no Indian school teaches English in a formal manner, but functional English alone is taught. Furthermore the Indian students have less exposure to English communication environment. School is the only place where the students have the opportunity to get exposed to learn English. Even at schools only one period of 45 minutes is allocated for teaching of English, which is not sufficient to learn a rich foreign language like English. Added to this, the major number of parents especially in rural areas do not know English and not in a position to help their kids in learning English at their respective homes. Even at school final examinations, writing skill of students are alone evaluated. Importance to other language skills namely listening, speaking and reading is completely ignored. Hence the students even after acquiring so many degrees and diplomas are not able to find a suitable employment because of their lack of sufficient skill in communicative English. The English
