"Internships: Theory and Practice" focuses on the history, theory, value, design, administration, and evaluation of professional internships as an educational experience for college students.

Internships are guided, pre-professional experiences that combine academic and professional components as a managed transition to professional careers. Touted by many as an educational innovation for the 21st century, internships (or experiential learning, or apprenticeships, as they once were called) have been a staple of professional preparation for centuries, dating back at least to the earliest documentation in the Middle Ages and no doubt far beyond that. Charles Sides and Ann Mrvica trace this history through primary sources to explore the development of internship experiences over the past 800 years, create an introduction to the topic of internships, and provide a foundation for modern college-corporation partnerships in professional education and training. The authors present specific better quality of life. Analytically, as both a movement and as a business model, cooperatives hold much potential for generating the types of synergies, collaboration, and productive and social processes that enable community development to thrive in a variety of local, regional and global contexts. This collection of articles chronicles new developments in the ways in which cooperatives are used in a diverse array of community contexts. They offer insight as to what these changes mean, both empirically and theoretically, for community development in the decades to come. This book is a compilation of articles published in the journal Community Development.

The Industrial Revolution 4.0 will not only cause job losses, but will also create new workspaces that may not exist today. It also needs to be considered by accountants in government because the processes of budget planning, budget execution, and financial reporting have used a large number of information systems. In the era of the Industrial Revolution 4.0, the changes will be faster, marked by the emergence of such systems as supercomputers, smart robots, cloud

Internships for academic credit serve as a joint venture between the university and the business communities, helping both groups meet their organizational objectives. Businesses gain qualified, temporary workers with verifiable skills for specific job needs. Administered properly, the academic credit does not merely certify on-the-job training, but ensures that the student has gained an educational experience as well. The first part of this study summarizes the Business College's experience over 10 years: the major course areas of the internships, and preliminary evaluations from business supervisors. The second part analyzes the extensive range of academic majors of the students and the wide variety of types of employers. While all evaluations by employer and student average in the good-to-excellent range, significant differences appear in the data. Employer evaluations reflect the academic position of the student, with MBA students receiving higher evaluations than juniors and seniors. Employer evaluations also reflect different communication skills among accounting, finance, and marketing majors. Employer ratings of students differ by student gender, and student ratings differ by gender of the student and gender of the supervisor. Since internships for academic credit give students the opportunity to apply classroom learning to an actual job setting the third part focuses on two topics students addressed in their final reports: describe how the curriculum at UCCS prepared you (or did not prepare you) for your internship; and describe yourself as a professional. Analysis of the first topic examines the responses according to majors' courses, core business courses, general education topics, and specific topics deemed most significant. It also identifies topics which students thought needed more attention. The analysis of the second topic examines the students' sense of self confidence as they move into professional fields, along with aspects of professionalism which they specifically identified. Further analysis identifies differences in student responses based in the types of industries where students served their internships. A short fourth part of this study considers additional organizational and student categories. Students cited real-world experience of the internship more in companies over 100 employees, but significantly less in small companies. Also the semester in which students
