Question practice is essential for all papers, but particularly for P2 as it has a strong 'fear factor'. Questions look intimidating, and it is only once you get into the detail that you realise that there are easy marks on offer. Our examiner-reviewed Practice and Revision Kit gives ample opportunity to practice the long, case study questions, so important in the exam. Three mock exams provide essential exam rehearsal practice. Many questions have marking schemes, so that you can see that the examiner awards marks for these techniques.

Financial Accounting: A practical approach introduces the principles of financial accounting using straight-forward language and clear design, making this often complex subject easier to understand.

Police forces pay widely varying prices for very similar items, which means money is being wasted. The price paid for such basic items as standard-issue boots can vary from £25 to £114, or £14 to £43 for handcuffs. This is even the case where items are identical. It cannot be right that prices paid for the same type of high-visibility jacket varied by as much as 33%. With central funding being cut, police forces must ensure they get best value for money from procurement so that they can focus resources on fighting crime. Forces can make big savings through bulk-buying of items, but have been unable to agree on the most simple things, like how many pockets they should have on their uniforms. The Department cannot persuade enough individual forces to cooperate with its attempts to introduce more centralised procurement, in part because forces are sceptical about the commercial competence of procurement officers working at the centre. National contracts with suppliers are not used by enough forces and do not cover many basic goods and services. Forces' use of the new, online police procurement 'hub' is also woefully below the Home Office's expectations. By 2013, a miniscule 2% of items were being bought through this central hub, against a target of 80% by the end of this Parliament. Police and Crime Commissioners have authority over local spending but, as the Department remains accountable for public money voted by Parliament, it cannot step back from value for money issues
