In today's highly competitive job market, an internship at the right company can be the first step to building a career. But how do you get the gig of your dreams? And once in the door, how do you figure out what to wear, whether it's okay to hook up with a coworker, and how to suck it up when you're smarter than your boss?

In this updated guide, Vault publishes the entire surveys of current students and alumni at more than 100 top business schools. Each 4- to 5-page entry is composed almost entirely of insider comments from students and alumni. Each school profile features surveys of about 10 students or alumni. These narratives provide applicants with detailed and balanced perspectives and insider information on admissions and employment prospects, which is lacking in other business school guides.

If you are a doctoral or non-doctoral student about to begin your internship in school psychology, you may have several questions about the process and what it will involve, and you may even be facing some anxiety about it. If you are a site or university supervisor preparing for the beginning of the internship year, you may be looking for ways to improve the internship experience for your students or for yourself and your fellow supervisors. Newman has used his many years of experience working with interns and field supervisors to create this guide to the school psychology internship process to address these common concerns. He provides a comprehensive overview of the school psychology internship process from start to finish, describing actions that can be taken to promote a high quality, dynamic internship experience. Emphasis is placed on the idea that the internship year is a dynamic and formative experience, not a static event, and that interns and supervisors both must be active planners, coordinators, and shapers of the experience. Each part of the book explores a different phase of the internship, from the first days through job applications and interviews. Helpful and pragmatic tools are included throughout, such as evaluation tools, best practice guidelines, and sample forms. Online resources are also available to complement the book and include reproducible material from the book, videos students can use to practice their interviewing skills, and links to helpful resources.

WHAT READERS ARE SAYING: "I wish that this book had existed when I was applying for positions back in college. I was a economics major with almost no real job experience, and it must have shown in my interviews. I got lucky because UBS was willing to take a chance on me as a summer intern, which led me to get where I am now. If I could do it again, though, I would take the much easier route and read this book. It would have prepared me for the parts of the job I never imagined." - First Year Analyst At Citigroup "Applying for my summer internship was a rough experience- I was afraid that I would never get the chance to show my skill in investment research to big companies because I would be rejected before I ever made it to the internship stage. Fortunately for me, this book helped me prepare and build my interview skills to the point where I felt that I had not just a fair shot at the job but an unfair advantage over the other candidates. It's a must read." - Current Intern At Goldman Sachs*

"Candidates don't realise that their video/telephone interviewer might've never worked in a bank." "Some investment banking teams have never hired a graduate externally." "Finance firms want to hire caterpillars: candidates who are outwardly agreeable and cooperative under authority early in their careers, but who, over the years, have the potential for metamorphosis into MDs and future leaders in the firm. A passive leader-in-disguise is the psychology of the perfect hire. "The world is littered with the bones of failed finance wanna-bes. Every year, between June and September, investment firms and consultancies open their doors to new graduates and interns. Thousands apply: students from Oxford to Staffordshire fantasise about working for the biggest, most competitive industries in the world. "Just imagine..." they think. "The 6-figure salary. Views of Canary Wharf. A bright, blue suit to wear every day." A handful receive offers.The remaining 99.9% stare blank-faced at their rejection emails -- no interviews, no application feedback, just an overly-polite "Thank You For Your Interest" generated by a computer. "I never wanted to work in finance anyway," they tell friends and family, eventually accepting a £20k job and working on less money for the next decade than a 19-year-old banking intern. As a student, I received front-office offers from the biggest investment banks in the world. Throughout my Undergraduate and Master's degrees, I interned (3-months each time) in the Big 4, a New York hedge fund and the world's biggest investment manager. That meant suffering through application processes THREE TIMES over. Believe me, I've interviewed everywhere. I also worked part-time in recruitment -- so remember those assessment centres and video interviews you've heard about, well I helped run them! Contained in this book is the knowledge to transform you into a top candidate for finance (IB, AM, S&T, Big4) roles. I've read similar ebooks on Amazon: what I've seen in other publications is generic, misleading, and somewhat out-of-date. It's either written by people who never broke into the industry themselves, or 40-year-old Managing Directors who applied to banking decades ago, in a very different time. I offer: An insight into how finance interviews work: how they're "scored" (yes, interviewers "score" you), how final decisions/offers are made (not even bankers outside of HR know some of this stuff). A specific overview of what finance interviewers are TRAINED to look for in candidates. It ain't just big smiles and silver spoons: there are guidelines written down, not unlike the criteria for marking a university essay. If you don't meet the spec, that's a minimum requirement you've failed. Poor and excellent examples of answers to real banking interview questions. An extensively detailed explanation of how people FAIL to land even a single internship grad/job. Up-to-date knowledge from the past 5 years. No guarantee of an internship/job after reading this book. That said, I'm confident this will skyrocket your chances.

An absolute must for all millennials and parents. This book is packed with tips to make your own career roadmap to success through internship. This book should be included in high school curriculum. –Venky Vijayaragavan (Vice President, Capgemini, US & American Inst. of Chartered Public Accountants) As a first-generation immigrant, I earned two master degrees and founded my own firm in the US in 10 years. I could make these achievements much sooner, If I've read this book in my years as a student. — Jinpei Li (Angel Investor, Silicon Valley, University of Southern California and Univ. of Berkeley, Haas School of Business) Practical experience through internships can do wonders to your career in ways good grades cannot. Foreign bound intern gets students to think about this fascinating way to broaden their horizons. And it does so with wit. A must read! Deepak Sekar (CEO Chowbotics & Georgia Inst. of Technology) Aniket questions conventional wisdom to succeed with education. This lucidly written book, drawn from his own experiences, is a must read for aspiring youths to chart a practical, superior way to succeed using internship. Ramesh Dewangan(University of California, Berkeley & Vice President, Real Intent) "This is a book I wished I picked up right at the beginning of my undergrad days, better yet, long before my undergrad. Aniket gives a comprehensive view of the unimaginable opportunities that exist for students through internships and why they are ought not to be missed." -Hemanth Satyanarayana (CEO Imaginate Technologies, IIT Madras & State Univ. New York Buffalo) "Foreign Bound Intern provides a recipe for the separation from the pack of tunnel versioned grade focused university students. It encourages you to seek international experience. Even if you are the C student, this is your opportunity to set the stage to have the A students working for you." -David K Raun (Vice President Avago Tech. & Silicon Valley Hi Tech Executive/Board Member)
