A new series of bespoke, full-coverage resources developed for the 2015 GCSE Mathematics qualifications. Endorsed for the OCR J560 GCSE Mathematics Higher tier specification for first teaching from 2015, our Homework Book is an ideal companion to the OCR Higher tier Student Book and can be used as a standalone resource. With exercises that correspond to each section of the Student Book, it offers a wealth of additional questions for practice and consolidation. Our Homework Books contain a breadth and depth of questions covering a variety of skills, including problem-solving and mathematical reasoning, as well as extensive drill questions. Answers to all questions are available free on the Cambridge University Press UK Schools website.

This book is dedicated to improving healthcare through reducing delays experienced by patients. With an interdisciplinary approach, this new edition, divided into five sections, begins by examining healthcare as an integrated system. Chapter 1 provides a hierarchical model of healthcare, rising from departments, to centers, regions and the “macro system.” A new chapter demonstrates how to use simulation to assess the interaction of system components to achieve performance goals, and Chapter 3 provides hands-on methods for developing process models to identify and remove bottlenecks, and for developing facility plans. Section 2 addresses crowding and the consequences of delay. Two new chapters (4 and 5) focus on delays in emergency departments, and Chapter 6 then examines medical outcomes that result from waits for surgeries. Section 3 concentrates on management of demand. Chapter 7 presents breakthrough strategies that use real-time monitoring systems for continuous improvement. Chapter 8 looks at the patient appointment system, particularly through the approach of advanced access. Chapter 9 concentrates on managing waiting lists for surgeries, and Chapter 10 examines triage outside of emergency departments, with a focus on allied health programs Section 4 offers analytical tools and models to support analysis of patient flows. Chapter 11 offers techniques for scheduling staff to match patterns in patient demand. Chapter 12 surveys the literature on simulation modeling, which is widely used for both healthcare design and process improvement. Chapter 13 is new and demonstrates the use of process mapping to represent a complex regional trauma system. Chapter 14 provides methods for forecasting demand for healthcare on a region-wide basis. Chapter 15 presents queueing theory as a method for modeling waits in healthcare, and Chapter 16 focuses on rapid delivery of medication in the event of a catastrophic event. Section 5 focuses on achieving change. Chapter 17 provides a diagnostic for assessing the state of a hospital and using the state assessment to select improvement strategies. Chapter 18 demonstrates the importance of optimizing care as patients transition from one care setting to the next. Chapter 19 is new and shows how to implement programs that improve patient satisfaction while also improving flow. Chapter 20 illustrates how to evaluate the overall portfolio of patient diagnostic groups to guide system changes, and Chapter 21 provides project management tools to guide the execution of patient flow projects.

This research product provides a thorough examination of the question: "How can the Army assess, develop, and retain strategic thinkers?" Expert input from within and outside the military provide a variety of perspectives that highlight areas of convergence and divergence, as well as, exemplar techniques, processes and insights that inform and change the conceptualization and practice of strategic thinking in the military. This compendium does not provide the answer to all of the Army's strategic thinking challenges, but it does provide many possible avenues to explore with the goal of enhancing the Army's strategic thinking capabilities. Topics and subjects covered include: qualitative thinking, metacognitive ability, cognitive flexibility, abductive reasoning, system theory, critical thinking, visualization, PME curriculum, strategic theory. Examination of literature on strategic thinking does not lead to one common definition of strategic thinking. However, there are some identified common attributes of strategic thinking. Strategic thinking is built on a systems perspective, intent driven, hypothesis driven, intelligently opportunistic (capitalizing on new possibilities as the situation changes), and involves the ability to think in time (linking past, present, and future elements). The confusion about the definition of strategic thinking is exacerbated by the confounded concepts of strategic thinking, strategic planning, strategy, and the strategic thinker. In addition to the lack of common definition of strategic thinking, Heracleous notes that there is no common definition of strategic planning or common understanding of the relationship between strategic thinking and strategic planning. Liedtka outlines several differences between strategic thinking and strategic planning that include reliance on systems thinking, the role of measurement and control, and a focus on the outcome (strategy) versus the process. For the purpose of this compendium, we have focused extensively on concepts related to strategic thinking (cognitive processes) and the strategic thinker (characteristics of a person). This work does not extensively address the concepts of strategy (outcome) or strategic planning (programmatic, analytical process). Strategic thinking in the military comes with unique challenges and opportunities. It is different than strategic thinking in the private sector.

The Psychology of Financial Planning

Section 1: Client and Planner Attitudes, Values and Biases

Section 1 includes Chapters 1, 2 and 3, and provides an overview of client and planner attitudes, values, and biases. This section discusses the importance of understanding how a client's psychology, background, learning style and values can all impact the financial planning process. It also discusses the importance of the financial planner framing advice in a way that accounts for all those psychological characteristics, leading to a more effective client-planner relationship and a higher probability of success. Research has shown that when clients can see that financial planning recommendations are demonstrably connected to their personal values and goals, they are much more likely to act on those recommendations and achieve success.

Chapter 1: Framing Advice in Light of Client's Risk Tolerance

(Swarn Chatterjee and Dave Yeske) Chapter 2: Developing a

Productive Client-planner Relationship That Addresses the Psychological Elements of Financial Planning (Megan McCoy and Neal Van Zutphen) Chapter 3: Identifying and Responding to

Client Values and Goals (Megan McCoy and Meghaan Lurtz) Section

2: Behavioral Finance Section 2 includes Chapters 4 and 5, and introduces key concepts from the area of behavioral finance. This section provides an understanding of the impact of cognitive biases and heuristics on people's financial decision-making and well-being, and discusses strategies for overcoming some of the common client psychology barriers in the financial planning process. Chapter 4: Impact of Cognitive Biases and Heuristics on Financial Decision-making and Well-being (Ron Sages and Swarn Chatterjee) Chapter 5: Client Psychology Barriers in the Financial Planning Process and Strategies for Overcoming Them (Ron Sages and Swarn Chatterjee) Section 3: Sources of Money Conflict Section 3 includes Chapters 6 through 10, and provides an overview of the major sources of money conflict. This section focuses on the harnessing of client's motivation for achieving their financial goals, examining couple and family financial transparency, and discusses strategies for mediating potential financial conflicts and facilitating goal congruence. This section also discusses counseling strategies that can be used for identifying when money is being used for purposes of manipulation. Chapter 6: Building the Client's

Motivation for Achieving Their Financial Goals (Rick Kahler)
Chapter 7: Examining Couple and Family Financial Transparency (Emily Koochel and Meghaan Lurtz) Chapter 8: Mediating Financial Conflict (Sonya Lutter and Emily Koochel) Chapter 9: Facilitating Goal Congruence (Rick Kahler) Chapter 10: Identifying When Money Is Being Used as Manipulation (Saundra D. Davis, Meghaan Lurtz and Megan McCoy) Section 4: Principles of Counseling Section 4 includes Chapters 11 and 12, and introduces the principles of counseling. This section includes the application of counseling theory in the financial planning process, and discusses strategies for forging trusting client-planner relationships. Chapter 11: Applying Financial Counseling Skills to the Financial Planning Process (Emily Koochel, Megan McCoy and Saundra D. Davis) Chapter 12: Forging Trusting Relationships (Megan McCoy and Sonya Lutter) Section 5: General principles of effective communication Section 5 includes Chapter 13, and provides an overview of the general principles of effective communication. This topic is of great importance as effective communication has been shown to be the single largest predictor of client trust and relationship commitment, which in turn can lead to a greater propensity by clients to reveal personal and financial information, engage in effective conflict resolution, and act on financial planning recommendations.

Chapter 13: Multifaceted Communication (Swarn Chatterjee and Ron Sages) Section 6: Crisis Events with Severe Consequences Section 6 includes Chapters 14 and 15, and discusses strategies for helping clients who experienced crisis events with severe consequences. The strategies discussed in this section focus on helping clients navigate unanticipated personal and environmental crises, and the importance of empathy when working with clients who experienced such events. As is true across all topics in this book, self-awareness and self-development by the financial planner is as important as understanding the client's psychology when helping them navigate difficult circumstances.

Chapter 14: Navigating Change (Sonya Lutter, Megan McCoy, Sandra D. Davis, and Lance Palmer Chapter 15: The Necessity of Empathy (Megan McCoy and Sonya Lutter)

"Epigenetic Principles of Evolution is a postgenetic treatment of the problem of metazoan evolution. It presents a radically novel epigenetic theory of evolution describing epigenetic mechanisms of evolutionary changes as they arise in the process of individual development. In seven chapters of Part 1 (Epigenetic Basis of Metazoan Heredity, pp. 21-216) the author introduces the reader to the epigenetic system of heredity - a function of the integrated control system. Cabej describes the dominant role of the epigenetic system of heredity in the processes of reproductive functions (chapter 3), in gametogenesis and in the process of the deposition of parental cytoplasmic factors (=epigenetic information) in gametes (chapter 4). In chapter 5 the author shows how the epigenetic information deposited in gametes in the form of maternal cytoplasmic factors determines the early embryonic development from the zygote stage to the phylotypic stage. A detailed description of the control of the postphylotypic stage of development, especially the formation of organs and organ systems, is presented in chapter 6 (p. 139-202). An outline of the main features of the epigenetic system of heredity and its relationship with the genetic system of heredity is provided in chapter 7 (203-216). Interactions between metazoan organisms and their environment, metazoan responses (especially behavioral responses) to changes in the environment and the ontogeny as a workshop of evolutionary change are dealt with in three chapters (8-10) of Part 2 (Neural-developmental premises of evolutionary adaptation, pp. 219-281). In Part 3 (chapters 11 and 12, pp. 285-339) the author deals with the mechanisms of developmental plasticity, the so-called circumevolutionary phenomena, and reveals the essential similarity between the transgenerational developmental plasticity and evolutionary change. In Part 4, Epigenetics of Metazoan Evolution (pp. 341-623), the author deals in details with evolution of the control system (chapter 13, pp. 341-377), developmental mechanisms of evolutionary change in evolutionary modifications (chapter 14, pp. 379-501), evolution by loss/vestigialization of organs (chapter 15, pp. 501-541), evolution by reverting to ancestral structures (chapter 16, pp. 543-569). A special chapter is devoted to the role of the neural crest, a uniquely vertebrate structure of neural origin, in evolution of de novo metazoan structures. Evolutionary convergences and their evolutionary-epigenetic implications are discussed in chapter 18. Part 5 (pp.645-732) is devoted to description of epigenetic mechanisms as determinants of species formation in sympatry. For all the cases of evolution of structures and species formation described in the book, the author presents both the conventional neoDarwinian explanation and the epigenetic explanation making it possible for the reader to assess the relative explanatory power of the genetic and epigenetic explanations. The book was published in 2008 by Albanet Publishing and contains 880 pages." --Amazon.

World History Teaching in Asia is the first broad survey of the content and approaches used to teach world history in secondary schools and colleges in Asia. The collection has been crafted by scholars and educators whose goal was to shed light on the importance of history education and to foster understanding of and between Asian countries. These essays show how the teaching of world history in Asian countries has developed since World War II, with many interesting parallels, including the issue of Eurocentrism, but also distinctive national trends, and considerable changes over time. At a time when many Asian countries are making great strides in education, this study of history education in Asia will be of real interest to educators, history scholars, and policy-makers worldwide.

The new 4th edition of Microeconomics is designed for students who have not previously studied economics. It provides a clear explanation of basic microeconomic principles through analogies, real-world examples and user-friendly graphs and illustrations. Thoroughly updated, while retaining the economy of exposition and clarity of purpose that this text is renowned for, it makes extensive use of data and examples to illustrate principles and concepts under discussion.

OVERVIEW OF CHANGES The major structural change was to move chapter 16 (Public goods, Common Resources and Externalities) forward in the text so that it is now the new chapter 13. Chapters 12 (Competition Policy and Regulation) and the new chapter 13 together become a new Part Four under the new Part heading Promoting Efficiency and Dealing with Market Failure. The contents of these chapters are closely related. The new Part gives more emphasis to the important and popular topic of market failure. Some minor rewriting was necessary to accommodate these changes however the content and structure of the chapters did not change significantly. A number of new high quality interest boxes (Explanatory Power, Economics at Work, Counterpoint, Historical Perspective) have been added. These boxes employ concepts developed in the chapter and use at least two newly defined terms (italicised in text) from the chapter. These boxes illustrate the relevance and usefulness of ideas introduced in the text. Facts and numbers throughout the text have been rechecked and updated where appropriate and 50% of the end-of-chapter questions for review and problems have been updated or rewritten.

DETAILS OF CHANGES & GENERAL APPROACH

PART 1: INTRODUCTION TO MICROECONOMIC This part introduces key concepts (e.g. opportunity cost and comparative advantage) and develops the simple supply and demand model. Elasticity is also covered in depth. No major structural changes were introduced other than moving content from the web into the text covering the basic interpretation of diagrams. This is now an appendix to Chapter One.

PART 2: THE PERFECT COMPETITION MODELThe title of this part was changed from Principles of Microeconomics to The Perfect Competition Model. Part 2 examines supply and demand in depth. Chapters 5 and 6 build on the basic economic principles of scarcity and purposeful choice to derive the demand and supply curves. Chapter 7 then combines these to create the perfect competition model, which is able to demonstrate the efficiencies inherent in perfectly competitive markets.

Chapter 5; The Demand Curve and the Behaviour of Firms clarifies the definition of utility. The numerical indicator simply ranks utilities according to preference, because utility cannot be measured. New content was added in an intuitive way to show the utility maximising rule (that is, when markets are working efficiently the marginal utility from spending an additional dollar on one good equals the marginal utility from spending an additional dollar on the other good).

Chapter 6; The Supply Curve and the Behaviour Firms was updated with examples to better illustrate how marginal costs for firms and the profit maximising level of output are related.

PART 3: FIRM AND INDUSTRY BEHAVIOURThis part was previously called Firms and Industries. It begins with the model of a perfectly competitive industry over the long run, explaining the entry and exit of firms in terms of economic incentives. The individual generic cost

Through a detailed re-reading of Saussure's work in the light of contemporary developments in the human, life and physical sciences, Paul Thibault provides us with the means to redefine and refocus our theories of social meaning-making. Saussure's theory of language is generally considered to be a formal theory of abstract sign-types and sign-systems, separate from our individual and social practices of making meaning. In this challenging book, Thibault presents a different view of Saussure. Paying close attention to the original texts, including the Cours de Linguistic Generale he demonstrates that Saussure was centrally concerned with trying to formulate a theory of how meanings are made. Re-reading Saussure does more than simply engage with Saussure's theory in a new and up-to-date way, however. In addition to demonstrating the continuing viability of Saussure's thinking through a range of examples, it makes an important intervention in contemporary linguistic and semiotic debate.

In a neo-liberal era concerned with discourses of responsible individualism and the 'selfie', there is an increased interest in personal lives and experiences. In contemporary life, the personal is understood to be political and these ideas cut across both the social sciences and humanities. This handbook is specifically concerned with auto/biography, which sits within the field of narrative, complementing biographical and life history research. Some of the contributors emphasise the place of narrative in the construction of auto/biography, whilst others disrupt the perceived boundaries between the individual and the social, the self and the other. The collection has nine sections: creativity and collaboration; families and relationships; epistolary lives; geography; madness; prison lives; professional lives; 'race'; and social justice and disability. They illustrate the inter- and multi-disciplinary nature of auto/biography as a field. Each section features an introduction from a section editor, many of whom are established researchers and/or members of the British Sociological Association (BSA) Auto/Biography study group. The handbook provides the reader with cutting-edge research from authors at different stages in their careers, and will appeal to those with an interest in auto/biography, auto-ethnography, epistolary traditions, lived experiences, narrative analysis, the arts, education, politics, philosophy, history, personal life, reflexivity, research in practice and the sociology of the everyday. Chapter 1: A Case for Auto/Biography; Julie Parsons and Anne Chappell. Section One: Creativity
