Dr. Denise Tarasuk's new release, Pocket Guide: Homeopathic First Aid for Vaccinosis, is a timely and critical response to the global dilemma of vaccinosis, especially among children. Here are the 12 foremost remedies with keynotes, clinical tips and comparative Materia Medica from the legacy of the Grand Masters. This unique guide, designed to serve as a desk-side companion for both the new and experienced practitioners, brings together Dr. Tarasuk's 20 years working alongside Dr. Sunirmal Sarkar, MD, PhD, in a village on the outskirts of Kolkata where she had the opportunity to treat tropical and rare diseases such as smallpox that are typically not encountered in the United States or Canada.

In this comparative study of thirty-seven remedies, Dr. Eugenio Candegabe displays how the materia medica may be reconstructed through the mental symptoms of the repertory, so as to find the remedy whose action most closely corresponds to the dynamic totality of an individual patient's life.

Excerpt from Supplement to Malcolm and Moss' Regional and Comparative Materia Medica: A Very Convenient Arrangement of the Most Characteristic Symptoms of Four Hundred and Twelve Homoeopathic Remedies, as Given by Hahnemann, Hering, Guernsey, Hale, Hoyne, Hughes, Jones, Burt, and Two Hundred Other Homoeopathic Physicians In Malcolm and Moss' Regional and Comparative Materia Medica. We believe we have improved upon the old arrangement, and the improvement is one that will assist the physician in more rapidly finding the symptoms of his patient. We have not only grouped the similar symptoms of each remedy, as in the old arrangement, but we have grouped the similar symptoms of all the remedies. If the first step in grouping, taken by Hahnemann, was good, the second step must be equally good. If it was a good arrangement to group the similar symptoms of each remedy, it must also be a good thing to group the similar symptoms of all remedies. In the old arrangement the remedies are placed in alphabetical order, and the action of each remedy is given upon all parts of the human body, in one place, and the symptoms of all the remedies are given on the same plan. Now, suppose the doctor has a case of eye disease, and suppose he looks it up in The Guiding Symptoms, a work of ten volumes. He will be obliged to consult all those volumes, and all those remedies from A to Z. He must look up what each remedy has about the eyes, or if he misses one it may be the one he should prescribe. It is similar with all other diseases. It will take hours to do this, and hence it will not be done. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Kent's repertory is one of the most acceptable repertories amongst the homoeopathic fraternity. Kent's comparative repertory is a helping hand for the physicians and students alike to overcome the problem of understanding the exact meaning of each rubric and to differentiate amongst the closely related ones such as 'abandon and Forsaken' also the book is a guide for the selection of 'The correct remedy' as it details the differentiating features of each of the third grade remedy under the given rubric. This facilitates the physician at the clinical level. The book well elucidates the most important section of the Kent's repertory which is the Mind section.

Systematic Materia Medica of Homoeopathic Remedies

Drugs are compared keeping in view a fixed systematic format like common name, family, prover, constitution, diathesis, temperament, disposition, miasm, thermals, ailments from, location, sensation or character of conditions, modalities, accompanying symptoms & clinical conditions where the drugs are useful. The references from the various books re-written in front of the symptoms within brackets for the student to have a glance at the sources from which the symptom comes. Important symptoms are highlighted in bold letters. Common symptoms of both the drugs are merged and placed at the beginning of each section. An attempt has been made to place the nature or character of contrasting symptoms exactly opposite each other and should be maintained to preserve the individuality of this book over others in the market.

Excerpt from Dr. H. Gross' Comparative Materia Medica In comparison to that which is not known, the knowledge of all physicians in this world is certainly small. But we should never be able to enlarge upon the existing basis, did we deny, as do the skeptics upon principle, the general certainty of cognition in medical science, or, to speak practically, the reliability of experience in the medical art. True, there are many trifles connected with the demeanor of the physician, either winning or destroying confidence, without the observance of which even the most distinguished experience and ability cannot captivate the public. Such a boon is usually somewhat dependent upon innate individuality, though sometimes acquired or developed. It would be unjust to denounce bluntly the use of these outward expedients by the cheap name of "charlatanry;" they deserve this designation only when not based upon a solid, scientific foundation, - a foundation which, however, cannot be present, or at least not apparent, where skepticism is raised to a dogma; or, where no connection has yet been found between theory and practice. But to return: in accordance with his experience, every physician cures as best he is able. In this respect we are in favor of the widest toleration, claiming the same for ourselves. No one is justified in marking out purely arbitrary paths in science, because these are mutually opposed as much as are anarchy and rational liberty. Hohenheim's doctrine did not become the common property of all physicians, because it was enveloped by a mysterious obscurity. Homoeopathy has no such fate to fear since she has a widely diffused "Press" as an ally. - Great, but not insurmountable, are the difficulties which, until now, have prevented her universal recognition and practical application. In so far as these difficulties lie in the Materia Medica, which, indeed, to the novice appears a chaos, I hope to remove them in a great measure by the present work. Our treasury of remedies has grown so much, both extensively and intensively, that the publication of further provings of new remedies seems only exceptionally desirable. A Clinical Materia Medica

Supplement to Malcolm and Moss' Regional and Comparative Materia Medica

As one begins to learn the homeopathic methodology, repertorising is a difficult, if not ominous endeavor. This book helps to sort out the many nuances of old, and clarify much of the "older" jargon. It explains to the novice homeopath just how to begin taking a case and using the Repertory in practical terms. The author presents the subject in a very logical and understandable sequence. A subject that is normally difficult to master is easily grasped with the help of this book.

This repertory is intended to serve as a handy and useful reference book. It is an attempt to lessen the difficulties of the prescriber. Remedies for a particular rubric are reduced to minimum possible by a careful selection. No drug is given unless there is strong justification provided for it, by authorities like Dr. Boger, Dr. Kent, Dr. Clarke's dictionary, etc. In this repertory, the heading including Mentals, Generals, Modalities, Organs, and their Sub-parts are all arranged according to their Alphabetical order. All the physiological and pathological conditions are also included. Cross references are given where-ever necessary.

The text has been entirely rewritten, and many symptoms, especially clinical, have been added, while nearly one hundred remedies, not included in the second edition, have been incorporated. Medicines are compared alphabetically in a table format. Five hundred comparisons of one hundred of our most generally used drugs. Very helpful when the doctor is confused between two remedies.
