Parts two to four

Although the significance of
'9/11' is subject to debate, it is symbolic of a general sentiment
of discontinuity
whereby society is vulnerable to highly disruptive events. Recent catalysts of this sentiment are eye-catching developments such as the SARS (Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome) and bird flu outbreaks, the Enron and Parmalat scandals, political assassinations in Sweden and the Netherlands, regime changes in Iraq and Afghanistan, and terrorist attacks in Bali, Istanbul, Madrid, and various parts of the Middle East.

However, recent discontinuities should not be seen

Development

Practice Page 8 2

as evidence that discontinuities occur more frequently now than they did before. Looking back in history we see that disruptive processes are common. For example, 25 years ago few Europeans would have predicted the upheavals on their own continent: the collapse of

communism, Berlin

the wars in the near doubling of the number of

Societal discontinuity is a relatively new area of concern in policy development.

Since the 1970s the consideration of change and discontinuity has gained some ground over predictive forecasting, which tended to reason from continuous developments and linear processes.

Rather than making forecasting the future, it has become popular to use scenarios as a manner to consider several possible futures. Scenarios are coherent descriptions of knowledge with creative thinking in an effort to capture a wide range of possible future developments in a limited number of outlooks. Scenario development assumes that the future is uncertain and the directions in which current

developments
might range from the conventional to
the revolutionary.

In theory, scenario development is a way to consider
future

discontinuity.

However, there are indications that the theoretical promise
is not reflected in scenario practice.

Research has shown that scenarios do not consider the idea of discontinuity as a matter of course. In our research, we found that a scenario study would benefit from efforts to create and foster a 'culture of curiosity' for exploring the future and the possible

discontinuities
rather than simply commissioning a scenario study to provide insights
about the future.
Only then can one
read the writing on the wall of future
developments.
