This volume introduces readers to the methodology of dynamic systems analysis, using mathematical modelling techniques as an aid to understanding biological phenomena. It creates an ability to appreciate current medical and biological literature, in which mathematical models are being used with increasing frequency, and provides an introduction to the more advanced techniques of systems science. Mathematical concepts are illustrated by reference to frequent biological examples. By the use of case studies drawn from physiology, the various levels of mathematical modelling which can be adopted are presented.

It introduces a new water cycle management concept for designing water systems that mimic the hydrological cycle, where reclaimed water is produced, stored/regulated, supplied and used in a semi-natural manner so that its self-purification capacity and system efficiency can be maximized. To ensure safe water throughout the cycle, emphasis is placed on the control of ecological and pathogenic risks using a series of quality indices associated with bioassays and molecular biological analyses, as well as risk assessments focusing on protecting the environment and human health.
