

Edmund C Tarbell Poet Of Domesticity

This book provides a rare insight into a private collection of American art. Presented here, twenty-six of Hugh and Marie Halff's collected paintings capture the aesthetic sensibility of late nineteenth- and early twentieth-century America. Every one of the artists in the Halff collection studied in France between the 1870s and the 1920s. That range encompasses artists rich in stylistic influence and painterly flair. While impressionists such as Childe Hassam, William Merritt Chase, and John Twachtman figure prominently, the collection also includes works by Winslow Homer, John Singer Sargent, Edward Hopper, and other luminaries.

Traces the career of the New England artist, describes the influences on his work, and looks critics remained disdainful of the format. Thus a dazzling body of photographic work has unjustly been buried. This book unearths the stereograph as an artistic medium and explores the subjects, composition, lighting, tonality, blocking and depth that make the best images so compelling. Overlooked photographers are celebrated, such as one who refused to play favorites during a bitter war and found humanity on both sides. Another took a favorite American glen and uncovered menace at every turn. Another found strange parallels among trees, rocks, waterfalls and tourists, anticipating the formal inventions of Modernist pioneers Cezanne and Seurat. Stereographers are not measured against "high art" photographers--the best practitioners, like film directors or television producers, fused artistry with commercial appeal.

Joseph Rodefer DeCamp was one of America's finest painters. Throughout his career he experimented with, and mastered, many techniques, constantly thirsting for new ways to express his artistic skills. DeCamp's first leanings were towards landscape painting, yet it is a tragic irony that so few of his landscapes survive, as a significant proportion of his early work, some several hundred paintings, was destroyed by fire when he was 46. This tragedy was compounded in later years by ill health, which reduced his output. Joseph Rodefer DeCamp was born in 1858 in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he studied at the McMicken School of Design. He left America in 1878 to study in Munich and then lived in Florence and Italy, before returning to the USA in 1883. The following year he settled in Boston. He was a founding member of the Ten American painters in 1897 and visited North Africa, Spain and England in 1909. DeCamp died in 1923 in Boca Grande, Florida. This book examines the artist's life in terms of seven well-defined periods. The book traces how, as a boy in Cincinnati, he showed astonishing early dedication to his talent. It describes how he trained in Europe for five years, studying first at the Royal Academy in Munich and then training under Frank Duveneck while living in Venice and Florence. Author Laurene

Buckley examines DeCamp's blossoming career on his return to America in three stages: Cincinnati and teaching in Cleveland; his early years in Boston; and his emergence as a national figure when, in the 1890s, he turned his consummate skills to Impressionism. Experimenting with bright colours, he earned himself an accolade from the New York Times as a painter "in the Monet advance." During the period that Laurene Buckley describes as DeCamp's "maturity", 1900-1917, the artist became well known for his portraiture. Many of his most famous surviving paintings are portraits. This book not only retells the story of DeCamp's varied life, but also examines his seemingly limitless experimentation
