India got freedom in 1947 but unfortunately it has not been able to attain the level of advancement and development as was desired: and was achievable too. This book will pave the way towards solution of our problems and resolution of disputes. It will turn the tide favourable: make the environment congenial: smash the dark clouds of despair to usher in brightness of hope: will purify the mind: and provide sublimity to the soul. A new dawn of hope will bring in a bright day of peace: the economy will prosper: citizens will be contented: happy: glowing and India will again become a vishwaguru.

China and India are home to one-third of the world's population. And they're undergoing social and economic revolutions that are capturing the best minds--and money--of Western business. In Billions of Entrepreneurs, Tarun Khanna examines the entrepreneurial forces driving China's and India's trajectories of development. He shows where these trajectories overlap and complement one another--and where they diverge and compete. He also reveals how Western companies can profit from the differences between China and India in areas such as information and transparency, the roles of capital markets and talent, public and private property rights, social constraints on market forces, attitudes toward expatriates abroad and foreigners at home, entrepreneurial and corporate opportunities, and the importance of urban and rural communities. He explains how these differences will influence China's and India's future development, what the two countries can learn from each other, and how they can work together to benefit the world. Engaging and incisive, this book is a critical resource for anyone working in China or India or planning to do business in these two countries.
