Qui gouverne les villes? Quel est le degré d'autonomie des villes? Comment la globalisation et la recomposition des rapports sociaux dans les métropoles affectent-elles l'exercice de la démocratie et redéfinissent-elles la citoyenneté? Les auteurs proposent, en termes analytiques et empiriques, de découvrir la portée réelle du renouveau de la démocratie participative et délibérative et les dynamiques communes aux métropoles britanniques, canadiennes et françaises.

You will struggle to find an exceptional discovery that wasn't preceded by a tirade of tribulations. In this series, we take a deep dive into some of the World's Most Prosperous Business Moguls and an index of errors and miscalculations they made on their journey to bringing forth the now life-changing products and services that we derive pleasure from and that have completely revolutionized our world. The sheer notion of failure scares many individuals in the business world. If it happened, will you concede defeat on the project and give up on the idea completely, or will you go back to the drawing board, modify and perfect it? 30 Days of Entrepreneurs' Series will prove to be the first and most rewarding breakthrough manual that offers great insights for businesspeople hoping to make it to fame and glory in the 21st century.

Courage and Integrity

This is a candid story from a man who values highly his family, friends and country - both his birthplace and his adopted home. Throughout his life, Sir Gulam has made many friends and helped innumerable people, and when the Noon Products factory was destroyed by fire, both friends and clients were there to help him recover. After selling the business to WT Foods, his own charitable institution, the Noon Foundation, was established and for his many efforts in this sector he was awarded an MBE. Increasingly, his time was spent working with many different charities and, in 2002, the Queen honoured him with a knighthood. A few years later Sir Gulam accepted nomination for a peerage but the 'cash for honours' storm erupted. He relates the incident from his personal perspective - his anger, humiliation, frustration and depression. He considers his relations with the police, the media, the Government, Tony Blair and other senior members of the Labour Party. He also reflects upon the tough questions facing Britain today, such as education, immigration, terrorism, and the role of the government and private citizens. He pulls no punches and his indomitable spirit commands respect - his story demands to be read.

Advertising provides a comprehensive coverage of the subject matter. It gives some sample of case studies. There are ten classes of the subject matter. These are classified as being persuasive, informative, institutional, financial, classified, retail, cooperative, industrial, government, and trade. Each of these types is defined and comprehensively explained. The subject matter also has a role to society and this is discussed in the text. The book defines such term as marketing, propaganda, and public relations. Different medium of commercial delivery are outlined. Such medium as via press, television, radio, cinema, direct mail, and exhibitions are analyzed. The process of doing an advertisement is discussed in detail. This is followed by a description of the six sides to advertising. Several advertising organizations are described in detail. And a section of the text identifies the ways in which commercials are being funded. The book will provide useful information to commercial creators, marketers, agents, students, and researchers in the field of marketing.
