Depuis ses débuts, l'Organisation des Nations Unies a publié une série de principes et recommandations internationaux concernant les recensements de la population et des logements, afin d'aider les bureaux nationaux de statistique et les responsables du recensement dans le monde entier à planifier et effectuer des recensements de qualité et rentables. La première série de principes et recommandations concernant les recensements de la population et des logements a été publiée en 1958 à la demande de la Commission de statistique de l'Organisation des Nations Unies pour répondre à la nécessité d'élaborer des normes internationales et en tant que fondement du premier Programme mondial de recensements de la population et des logements. Bien que ces recommandations aient évolué avec le temps pour se conformer aux pratiques actuelles et aux besoins nationaux, elles fournissent en général des orientations sur les principales caractéristiques des recensements de la population et des logements, des renseignements généraux sur les activités de recensement, des méthodes et des conseils plus précis sur le contenu des recensements. Cette présente révision a été conçue afin d'aider à effectuer la série de recensements de la population et des logements de 2020.

Living with History focuses on a particular aspect of heritage preservation in the twentieth century: destruction and postwar reconstruction in Belgium, France, Germany, Great Britain, and

The Netherlands. This book establishes a status quaestionis for the historiography of wartime and postwar preservation, and sets these particular developments in preservation history in the context of the general evolution of architecture and urbanism. The authors investigate the specific role of conservationists and heritage institutions and administrations in the overall reconstruction and examine the part played by architects and planners in heritage preservation.

Bibliographic Guide to Refrigeration 1965-1968 is a bibliographic guide to all the documents abstracted in the International Institute of Refrigeration Bulletin during the period 1965-1968. The references include nearly 7,000 reports, articles, and communications, classified according to subjects, and followed by a listing of books.

This book is divided into 10 parts and begins with a listing of references on thermodynamics, heat transfer, and other basic physical phenomena relating to refrigeration, including desiccation and measurements of temperature, humidity, and pressure. The next sections are devoted to the physics of low temperatures and cryogenics;

production and distribution of cold; refrigerating plants (mainly in the food domain); and refrigerated transport and packaging. Other references deal with air conditioning and heat pumps; and industrial, biological, medical, and agricultural applications of refrigeration. The final section focuses on standards and regulations, economics and statistics, and education and trade activities in the refrigeration industry. This guide is intended to assist researchers, engineers, manufacturers, and operators who are in either constant or occasional contact with the refrigeration domain.
