Johannes de Silentio, the pseudonymous author of Fear and Trembling, concludes that faith is "absurd" (irrational), and therefore lies beyond the scope of reason. But if we ascribe authorship ultimately to Kierkegaard, as is common practice, we must conclude that he himself is an irrationalist. Given the myriad of competing voices throughout Kierkegaard's writings, this seems highly questionable at best. If, however, we take the pseudonymous author strictly at his authorial word, it changes the shape and dynamic of the text inviting us to read it, instead, as a "thought experiment." In this way, the text demonstrates both the absurdity and sin of reason in its bid to fully grasp the mystery of faith on its own rational terms.

"Your tail isn't real," I said slowly. "It is," he said, splashing the water with it. "Come, look at it." There was no way I was going to jump into the water with him. "No, thanks." I stood up about to go. Then he grabbed my arm, and I fell into the water. The coldness of the water hit my skin. ♥A new exciting adventure awaits!♥ Kelvin the merman, is obsessed with Livia, an ordinary human girl. The last of the merfolk scour Earth for a new home to call their own. The underwater city of Liri has thrived off the coast of Denmark for generations. But now, as Europe's medieval age comes to a close, the efforts of zealous priests and the destructive ringing of church bells are causing the city to crumble. An ageless people who thrived apart from the cruelty of human existence on land, the merfolk are poetic speakers, loving and loyal, nearly impervious to death but with one great deficiency: They lack souls. Their numbers dwindling, the merpeople scatter. Some abandon their home for the coast of Dalmatia in the Adriatic Sea, while others—the half-human, half-seaborn children of the great merfolk king Vanimen—decide to scout alien territory on land for adventure, treasure, and clues to their lost human heritage.

I swam from my future only to find my daddy. Alpha wolf shifter Alton heard the call of the sea from his pack's territory in the mountains. Yet it's only in the wake of his father's death that he follows destiny's current to the shoreline. While his soul finds peace during the day, listening to the gently lapping waves, at night his dreams are haunted by long suppressed memories. Through those flashes of moments long forgotten, Alton realizes he's there for more than a new start. It's up to him to right the wrongs of the past... As next in line for the throne, omega merman Merrik's entire life has been arranged for him. Which means an alpha has been chosen for him. Unfortunately, even the idea of this mating makes Merrik's skin crawl. That leaves him with only one choice: leave his underwater kingdom and cross his fingers the whole situation blows over. Little does he know, fate has other plans. No sooner do his toes sink into the sand, than Merrik feels the unmistakable pull of the mate bond. The fact that it's to a human would have been shocking enough, but to a smexy wolf bearing the mark of the forbidden ones is downright scandalous. His father may never forgive him, yet Merrik can't deny he aches for Alton's touch. Can the love they share rewrite their peoples' sordid history? Or will it come crashing down like white-capped waves on a rocky shoreline? Merman Rising

My kiss changed her life forever. I've spent my merman existence knowing that one day the ocean would send me the perfect human to be my mate. What I didn't expect was to lose her at sea. I let the ocean have Ava. My merman soul knew she was my future. So to save her life, I changed her and gave her my merman spark. If only I didn't break merpeople tradition or promise Ava that I would remain on land. Because she's out of control. Her mermaid nature drags us deeper into the ocean and from the shore we both love. If that happens, I'm not sure we could ever escape the merpeople. I will lose her family, and I'll lose my future on land. Worst of all, Ava might never love me. If that happens, I'll lose my forever without my spark. Mermaid Mates is a retelling of Ginna Moran's merman romance, Diving Under, from Carter Stevens' perspective. It contains brand new content and can be read apart and without the original.

This internationally acclaimed winner of the Finlandia Award is “a brilliant and dark parable about the fluid boundaries between human and animal” (The Boston Globe). Angel, a young photographer, comes home from a night of carousing to find a group of drunken teenagers in the courtyard of his apartment building, taunting a wounded, helpless young troll. He takes it in, not suspecting the dramatic consequences of this decision. What does one do with a troll in the city? As the troll's presence influences Angel's life in ways he could never have predicted, it becomes clear that the creature is the familiar of man's most forbidden feelings. A novel of sparkling originality, Troll is a wry, beguiling story of nature and man's relationship to wild things, and of the dark power of the wildness in ourselves. “[An] imaginative and engaging novel of urban fantasy . . . The stuff of ancient legend shadows with rather unnerving precision the course of unloosed postmodern desire.” —Chris Lehmann, The Washington Post Book World

For while Jon might be a nobler man than Raef believed, he's still a pirate. Love and loyalty are not on Jon's agenda, and he certainly has no plans to love someone not entirely human ...
