Between 1964 and 1975, 2.6 million American personnel served within the borders of South Vietnam during the Vietnam War, of whom an estimated 1-1.6 million actually fought in combat. At the tip of the spear

was the
infantry, the
"grunts" who entered an extraordinary
tropical combat
zone completely
alien to the world they had left behind in
the United States. In South Vietnam, and
occasionally

spilling over into neighboring Laos and Cambodia, they fought a relentless counterinsurgency and conventional war against the North Vietnamese Army (NVA) and Viet Cong (VC). The terrain was as challenging

as the enemy -
soaring
mountains or
jungle-choked
valleys;
bleached, sandy
coastal zones;
major urban
centers;
riverine
districts. Their opponents fought
them with
relentless and

terrible
ingenuity with
ambushes, booby
traps, and
mines, then
occasionally
with full-force
offensives on a
scale to rival
the campaigns of
World War II.
This pocket
manual draws its content not only

from essential
U.S. military
field manuals of
the Vietnam era,
but also a vast
collection of
declassified
primary
documents,
including rare
after-action
reports,
intelligence
analysis,

firsthand
accounts, and
combat studies.
Through these documents the
pocket manual
provides a deep
insight into what it was like
for infantry to
live, survive,
and fight in Vietnam, whether conducting a

operation or
conducting

book includes
infantry
intelligence
documents about

threats, plus
chapters
explaining hard-
won lessons

[Includes 36 maps and 10 tables] Deep battle, a major element in both U.S. and Soviet doctrine, is a tenet that emphasizes destroying, suppressing, or disorganizing enemy forces not only at the line of contact, but throughout the depth of the battlefield.

Airborne forces are a primary instrument to accomplish this type of operation. While the exploits of German, British, and American paratroops since 1940 are well known to most professional soldiers, the equivalent experience of the Soviet Union has been largely ignored—except in the Soviet Union. There, the Red Army's airborne operations have become the focus of many recent studies by military theorists.

Lieutenant

This study, in demonstrating the ability of Russian airborne then again for Special Forces training. From a very meager beginning but sustained by a strong motivation and confidence in his mission, the Special Forces soldier has marched through the Vietnam struggle in superb fashion. In 1957 some fifty-eight Vietnamese soldiers were given military training by Special Forces troops. Ten years later the Special Forces were advising and assisting over 40,000 paramilitary troops, along with another 40,000 Regional Forces and Popular Forces soldiers. This monograph traces the development and contact with the enemy is essential to win the battle, and U.S. military history contains many examples where our knowledge of the enemy, or lack of knowledge, directly led to victory or defeat.

The role of reconnaissance and surveillance has not diminished on the
